

International Recruitment Standard Benchmarking Project - Call for Expression of Interest

About ESC International:

ESC International is an ethical trade consultancy with a focus on modern slavery, labour exploitation, worker rights, and the environment.

Job details

Salary

£500 a day

Job Type

Initially five days consultancy but upon successful completion of phase one more days will be available

Benefits

Flexible schedule

Work Location

Remote - The selected consultants will self-arrange their own working space with consideration given to the activities.

Requirements

A degree in public policy, international development, international relations, law, economics, public administration, or related social sciences (or an undergraduate degree coupled with substantial professional experience).

Or

No less than five years' international work experience participating in and managing projects combatting exploitation in labour supply chains.

Full Job Description

The purpose of this position is to assist the Managing Director in a specific benchmark activity, comparing ethical labour standards and capacity building programmes (including the related materials) for the protection of international migrant workers.

Through gap analysis and evaluation of two different internationally recognised programmes, the outcome will inform the areas that require alignment.

For this objective, our framework would utilise the established standard comparison process - Process Benchmarking Methodology.

The approach will require not only the methodologies and the tools that will be analysed through an in-depth desk review of materials provided to the consultant by the Clients, but also their effectiveness in relation to the needs of migrant workers.

Interested?

Please send a brief cover letter (no longer than one page) explaining why you want to join the team for this project, alongside your resume, to jenni@escinternational.org. We encourage you to apply as soon as possible.